What Futbol Island is

Futbol Island is a free football learning game for kids aged 7 to 12. They explore an island and learn positions, team shape and the Laws of the Game in 7v7, 9v9, 11v11 and futsal, one short lesson at a time.

Free, always.

Learning the game shouldn't cost money. Club soccer already prices too many kids out.

No ads

The game shows no advertising, and it uses its own visit counter with no cookies and no third-party analytics.

No chat

There is no free text chat and no voice chat. Islanders are part of the game and talk through preset topics a child taps. Play with friends uses preset football calls and emotes only.

- Free, with no ads, and coins are earned by playing, never bought.
- No accounts and no chat: a save code with no personal details.
- Built in San Diego with White Sports Ventures and local non-profits.

Why we built Futbol Island

Many young players learn best by seeing it. Yet a lot of the basics, like where to stand, when to pass and how a team keeps its shape, rarely get taught at club or recreational practice, where time goes to drills and games. Futbol Island closes that gap: every idea is shown on the pitch, explained and checked with a quick quiz.

What your child learns

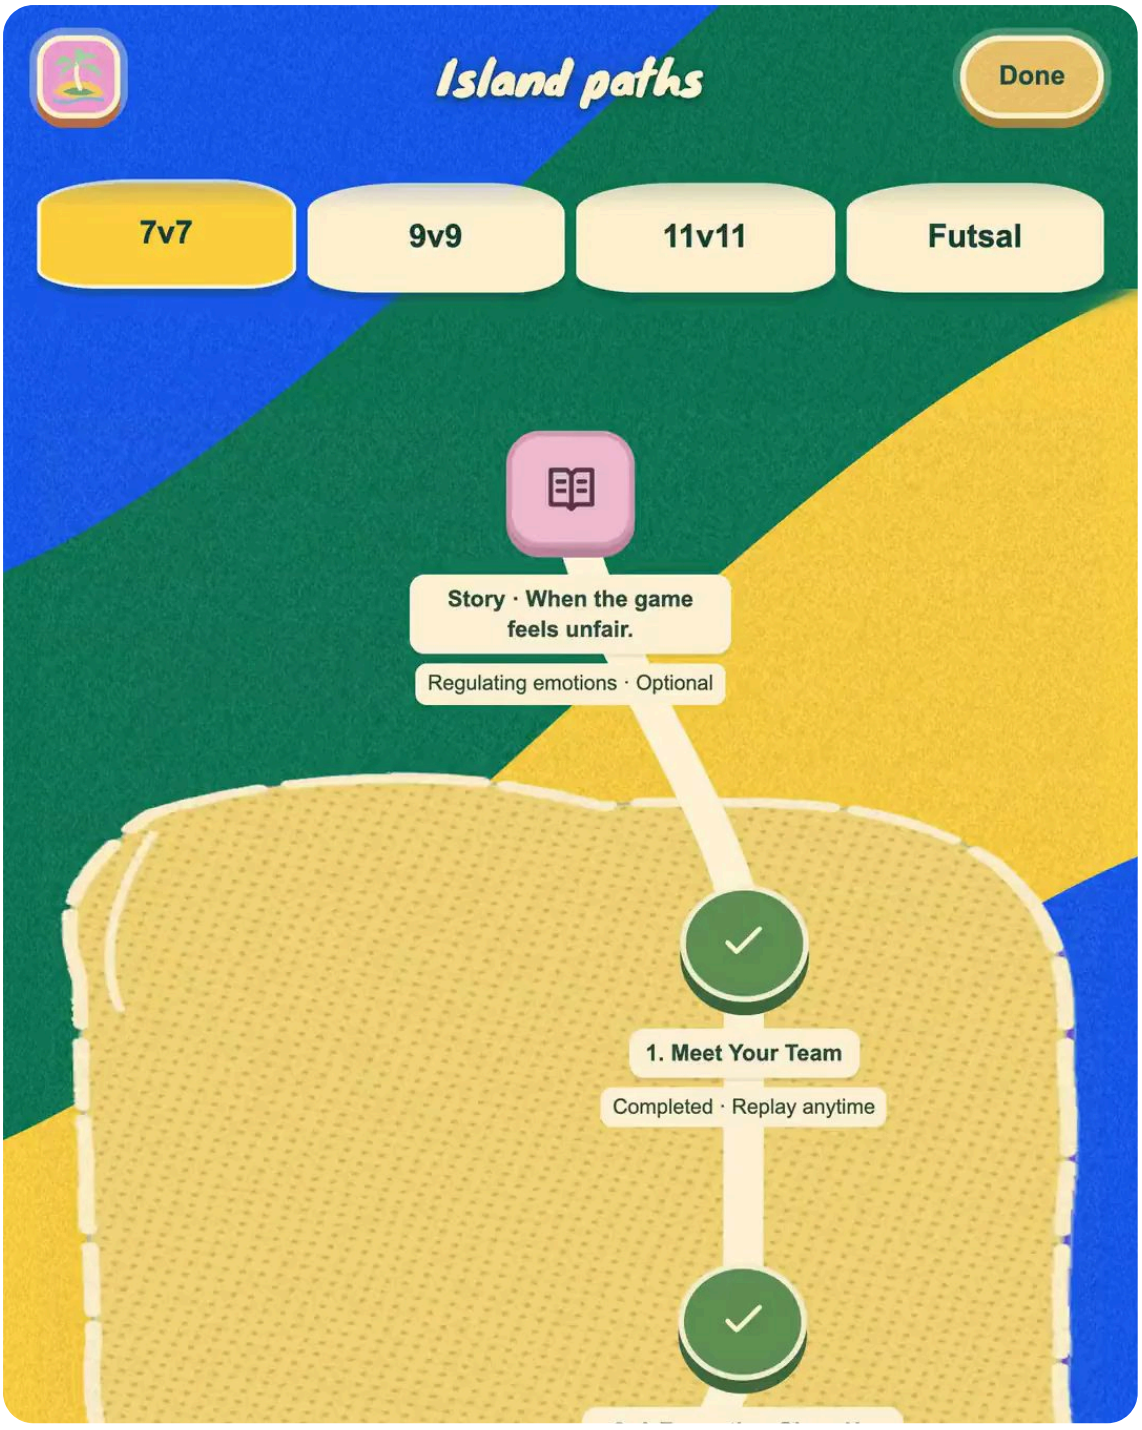

Positions, team shape and decisions in 7v7, 9v9, 11v11 and futsal, through short lessons and quizzes, plus the history and culture of the game in the museum.

Privacy

No ads, no free-text chat, no contact details. A save code (three words and a number) instead of an account. The Play with friends feature asks a grown-up to type a first name, which is shown only to the friends in the same party and is not kept. The game does collect anonymous usage data (visits, play time, which lessons and features are used), only to run and improve the game and to show sponsors combined totals that help keep it free. Sponsors never get anything about an individual child, and nothing is sold.

Learn the game

Short lessons on a moving pitch, a coach who explains each step, and a quiz that checks the idea.

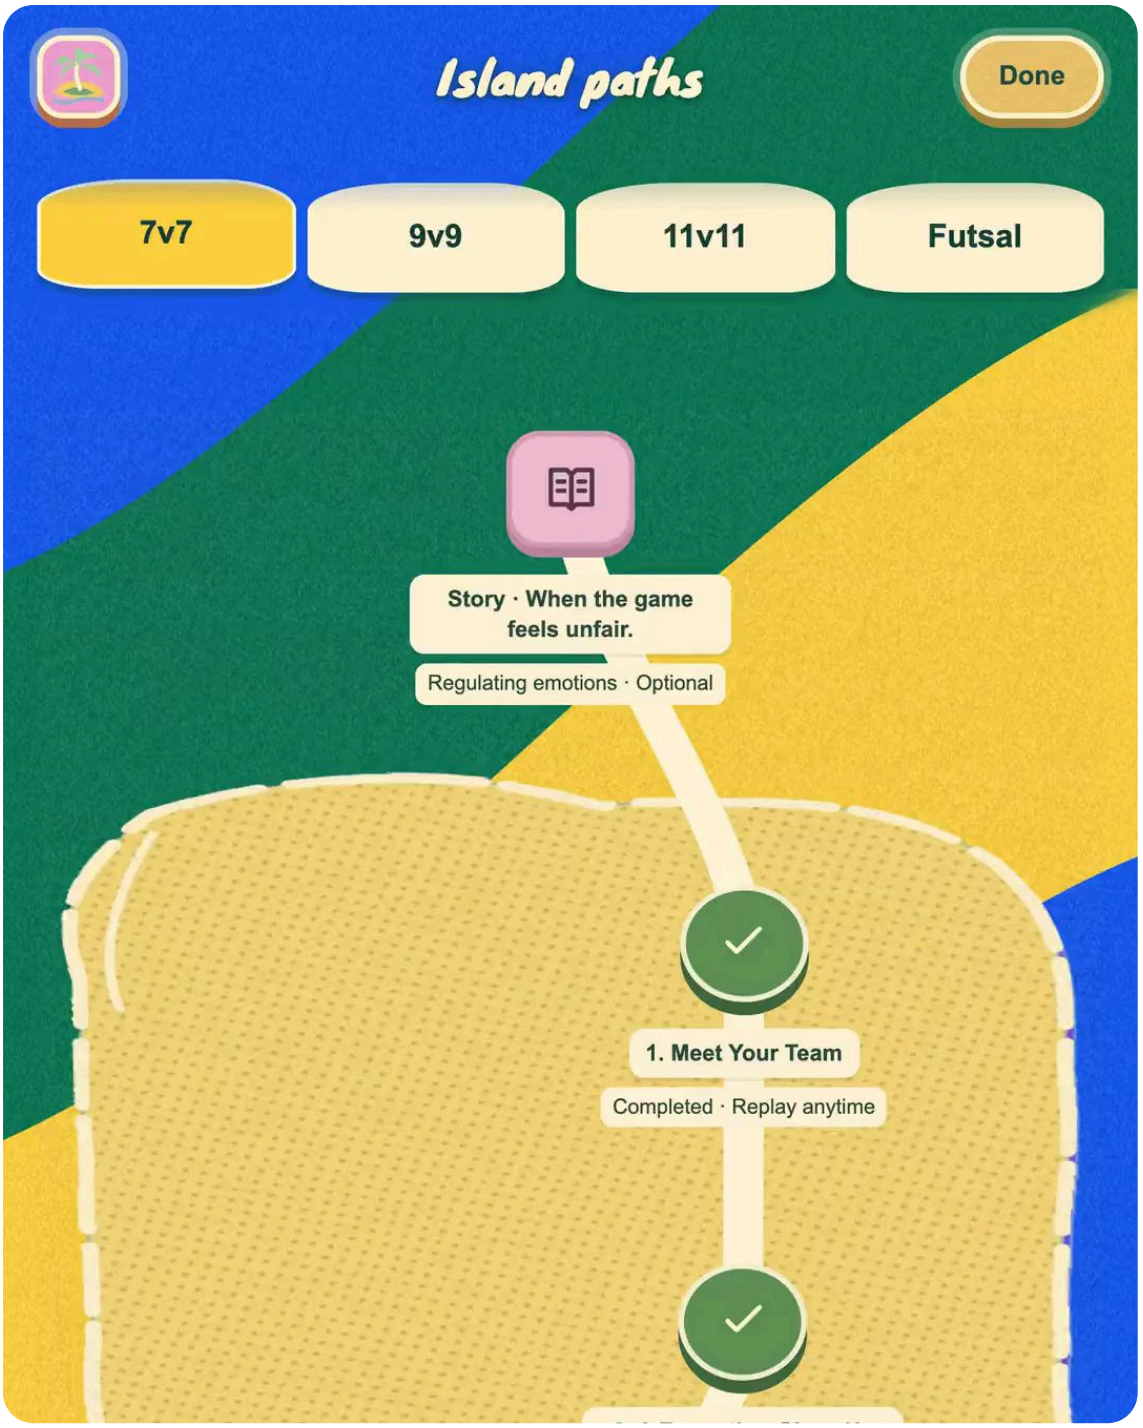

Four learning paths

Learn 7v7, 9v9, 11v11 and futsal, one short lesson at a time.

Each path follows the format a child actually plays, from small-sided 7v7 up to 11v11, plus futsal. Lessons build in chapters, so the next idea always sits on the last one.

Football idea: Positions, team shape and decisions for each format: where to stand, when to pass and how a team keeps its shape.

In the game: 96 lessons with 486 quiz questions across 4 formats.

Watch it, then prove it

Players move on a real pitch while the coach explains every step.

A lesson plays out with moving players, and a coach voice talks through each step. A quick quiz follows, and a lesson only counts once every question is answered right.

Football idea: Seeing the idea in motion first, then checking it, the way a coach shows a pattern on the field before asking players to run it.

In the game: Each path has 12 starter lessons, and a lesson counts only when its whole quiz is right.

Story films

Short films about grit, nerves and handling a loss.

Story films sit between the lessons on each path, painted and narrated. They cover the side of football that drills skip, like staying calm when a game feels unfair.

Football idea: The mental game: mental toughness, regulating emotions, grit, empathy and how to handle a loss.

In the game: 22 narrated story films across the four paths.

Daily warm-up

Old quiz questions come back, just as they are about to slip.

The warm-up brings back questions from lessons a child has already passed, spaced out over days. A few minutes of recall keeps an idea from fading.

Football idea: Remembering the ideas from earlier lessons, so they are ready when a real game needs them.

In the game: Only questions from quizzes already passed come back, spaced over days.

Watch live island matches

Island teams play real formats, and you spot the idea you learned.

Computer-run matches play on the island pitches with each format's own rules. A Spot it prompt asks the player to find an idea from a lesson they have learned while the match runs.

Football idea: Applying a lesson to a real game: recognising support, width or a passing lane as play moves.

In the game: Spot it only asks about lessons the player has already learned.

Graduate each path

Finish a path, get a certificate, then board the Matchday Ferry.

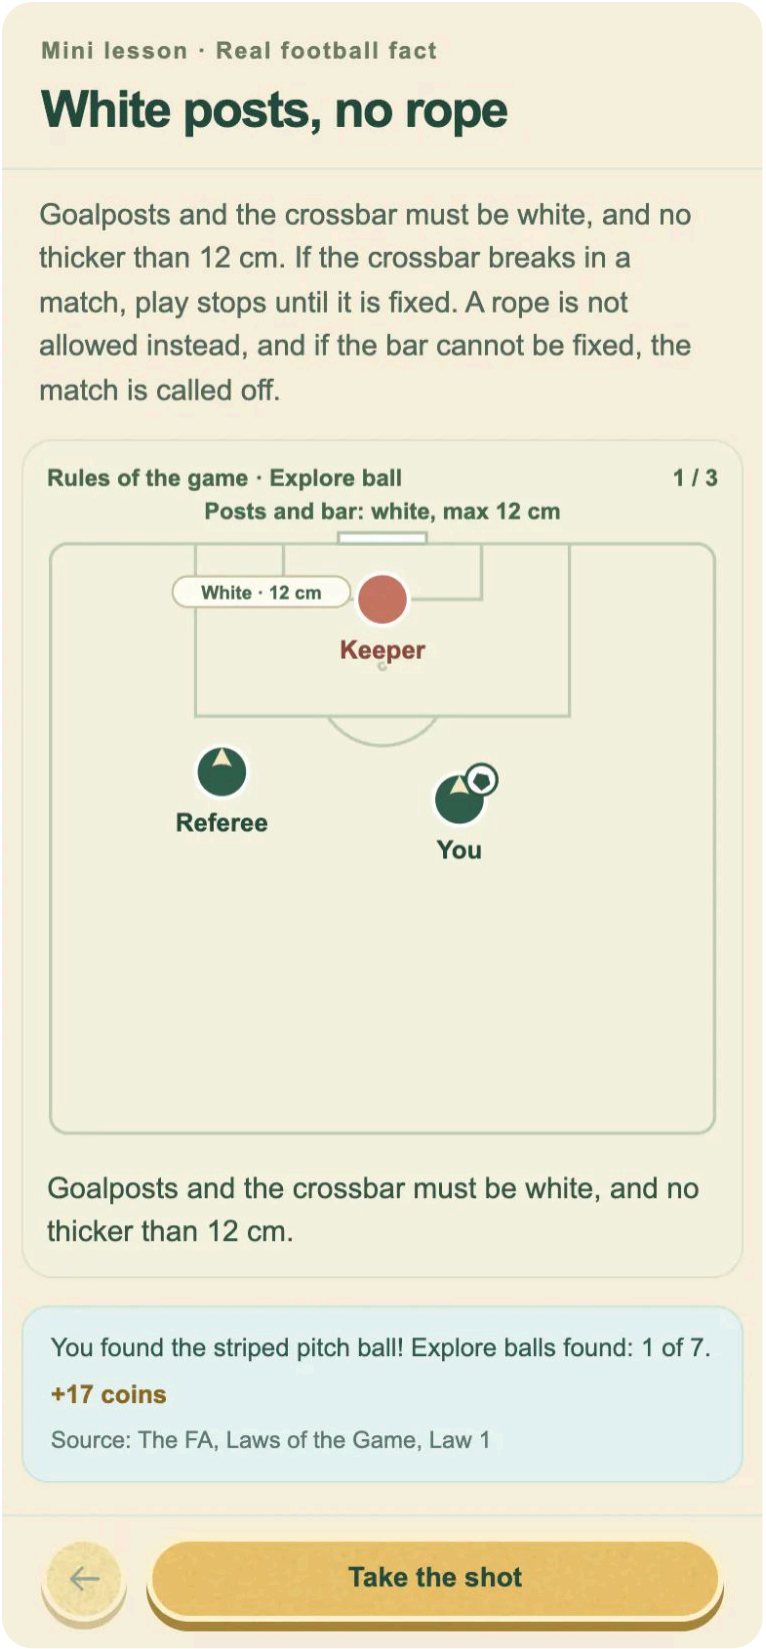

Finishing a path holds a graduation with a certificate that lists the lessons learned. When all four paths are done, the Matchday Ferry opens for the final day.

Football idea: A clear finish line for each format, so a child can see what they now understand.

In the game: A certificate lists the 12 lessons learned and carries no name, age or photo.

Explore and discover

Every corner of the island hides a football idea: in a ball, a sea animal, a bug or an islander.

The hidden-ball hunt

Find a hidden ball, and it teaches you one football idea.

Balls are tucked away on rooftops, beaches and corners of every island. Each one opens a short animated mini lesson with a practice prompt.

Football idea: One idea per ball, from rules and skills to history, each drawn on a small pitch diagram.

In the game: 116 hidden balls, each with its own mini lesson.

Reef treasure balls

Dive to a treasure chest and find a football inside.

Each Explore reef zone hides one ball in its open treasure chest. Picking it up plays a mini lesson about a real football fact, then offers a card choice.

Football idea: Little-known football facts, like the oldest ball ever found and a kicking game from ancient China.

In the game: 7 reef zones, 7 hidden balls, 7 mini lessons that repeat no other lesson.

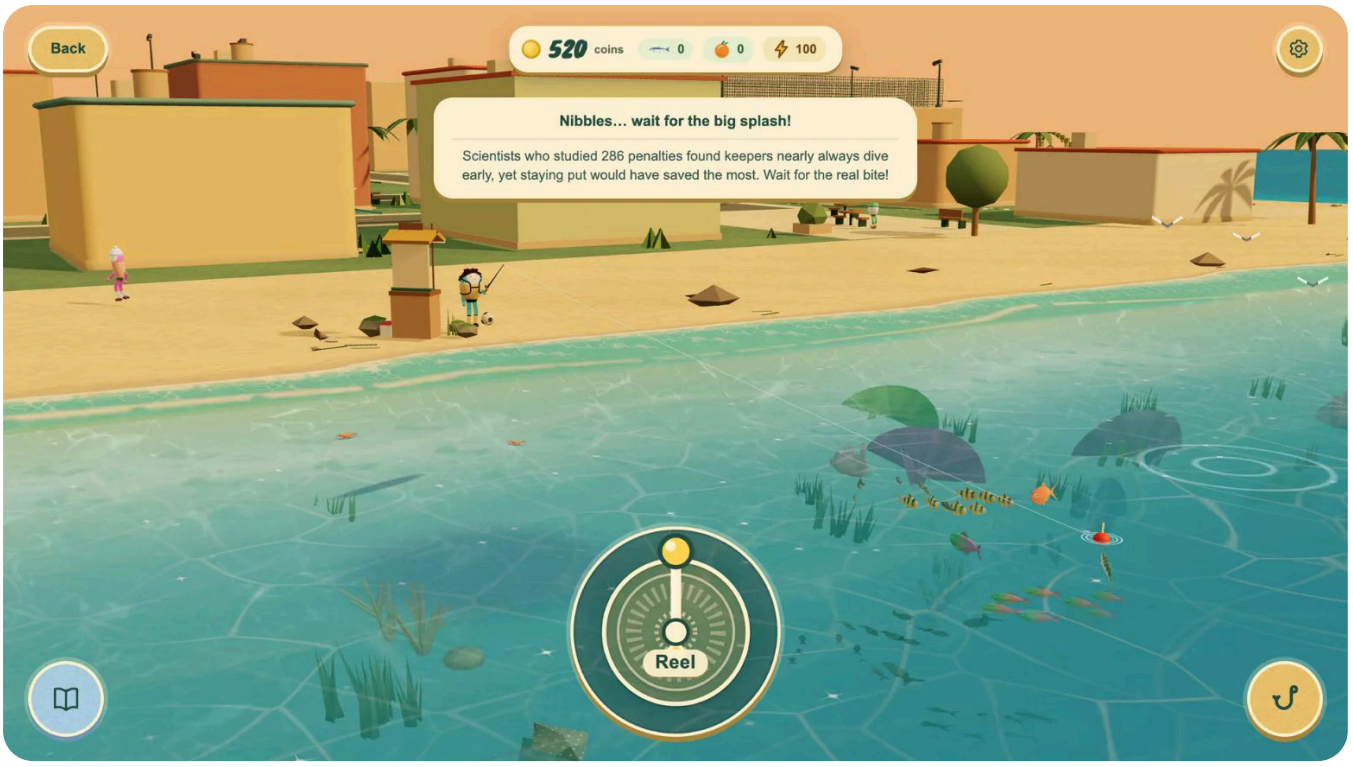

Swim, dive and ride

Swim the reefs and hang on to a manta ray or a whale shark.

The sea around the islands is open to swim, with reef zones to dive into and sea life to meet. Near a manta ray or a whale shark, a Hang on button pulls the player along.

Football idea: The reefs are where the reef balls and sea finds are, so swimming is how a child reaches those football facts.

In the game: 2 sea animals to ride: the manta ray and the whale shark.

Fishing and the Fishbook

Every sea animal you catch links to a real club fact.

Fishing on the island is calm and quick, and every catch goes into the Fishbook. Each animal page says which real club, team or football story it is linked to, with a source credit.

Football idea: Club history and culture, plus a goalkeeper lesson: stay set, do not bite on a feint, then react fast.

In the game: 73 sea animals to catch, 10 of them legendary.

Bug Squad

Catch bugs that each play a position, like the Goalie Ladybug.

The Bug Squad job hands the player a net to catch bugs in the meadows and gardens. Every bug plays one position and brings true football stories in the Bug Book.

Football idea: Positions and their jobs: the Goalie Ladybug, for example, teaches that only the keeper may handle the ball, and only in their own area.

In the game: 20 bug species, each tied to a position.

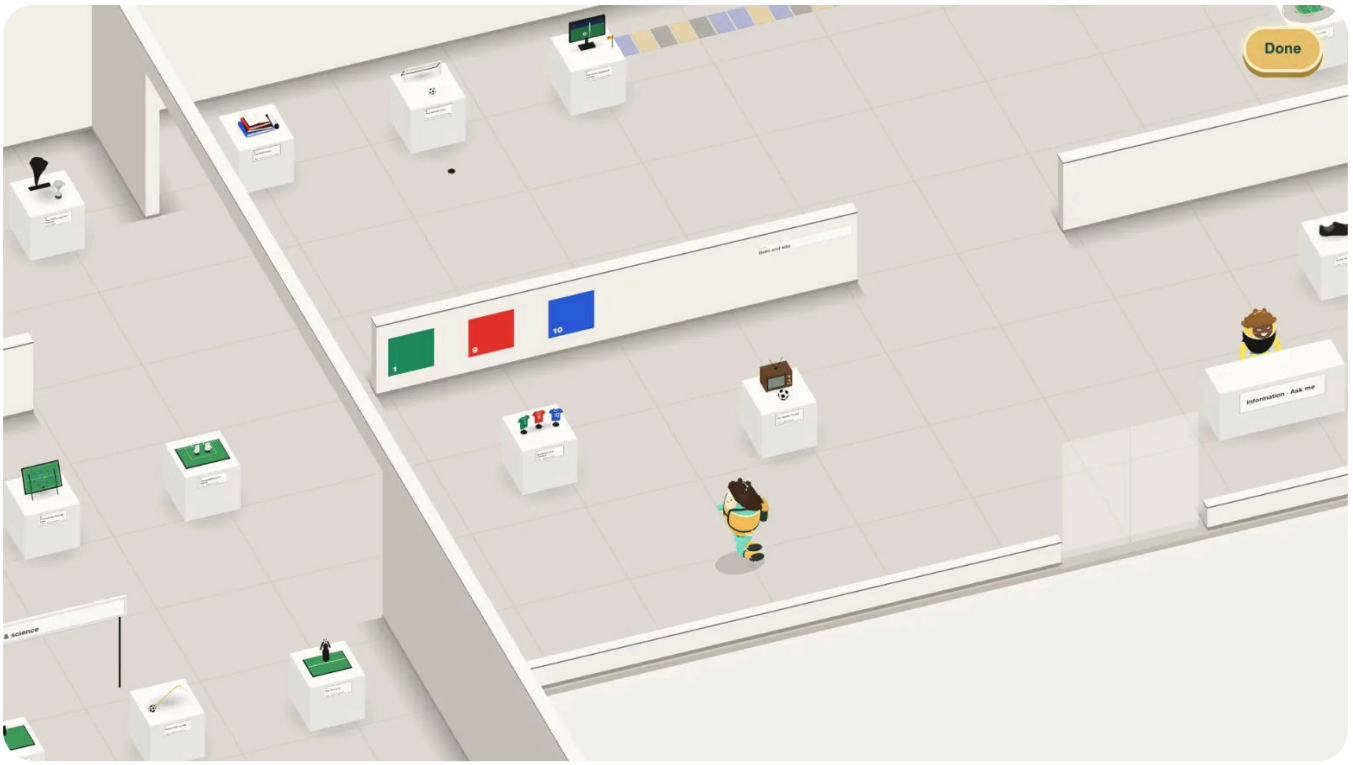

Beachcombing

Pick up shells and starfish, each with a football tip.

Sparkles on the sand show a find to pick up and sell at the market stand. Every find goes into the Shellbook with a sea fact and a football tip.

Football idea: Short football tips, one per find, alongside a true sea fact.

In the game: 13 kinds of beach finds in the Shellbook.

The History Museum

Walk the halls of football history, from 1863 to VAR.

The museum holds exhibits on the Laws of the Game, World Cup history, balls and kits, legends and the science of the game. Many open into hands-on experiences, and each one ends with a way to take it to your game.

Football idea: Where the rules came from and why: offside, the penalty kick, throw-ins, free kicks, and how the game spread.

In the game: 22 exhibits in 7 galleries.

The Konbini

A walk-in corner shop with football magazines on the shelves.

The Konbini (convenience store) is a small shop to walk into, with snacks that refill your fuel, a cashier with tips and a ball for keep-ups. Every snack shows a short football food tip, and the magazines and cashier facts teach the Laws and long-settled football history, each with sources.

Football idea: What food and water do for a player, plus Laws of the Game facts and tournament history in short magazine pages.

In the game: 8 football magazines on the shelves.

Talk to the islanders

Coaches, fans and players with football stories to share.

Walk up to an islander and tap Talk to pick a question from their topics. Every islander has a role and a personality, and the talk always comes back to football.

Football idea: Coaching ideas, positions, club culture and what different people love about the game, with no typing.

In the game: 158 islanders to meet.

Quick challenges

Islanders ask a one-tap football question with three answers.

Some conversations end in a quick challenge with three options and one right answer. Right or wrong, the islander explains why in one short line.

Football idea: Fast football decisions and rules, checked in a few seconds and explained right away.

In the game: 653 quick challenges across the islanders and areas.

Bubbles and banter

Walk past and hear islanders think out loud about football.

Islanders say short lines as a player passes, and pairs chat with each other. It makes the island feel alive while staying calm on screen.

Football idea: Small football thoughts in passing, the way players talk about the game on the touchline.

In the game: At most 2 speech bubbles show at once, so the screen stays calm.

Real scores from islanders

Ask a fan on the island about last weekend's results.

A few islanders keep up with real leagues and share recent verified results. The game's server fetches the scores, so a player's device never contacts a sports site.

Football idea: Following real football: leagues, results and fixtures, told as short match stories.

In the game: Results come from 10 leagues, and only finished, verified scores are shared.

Play and practise

Games and challenges that each train one real skill, from the first touch to picking a corner.

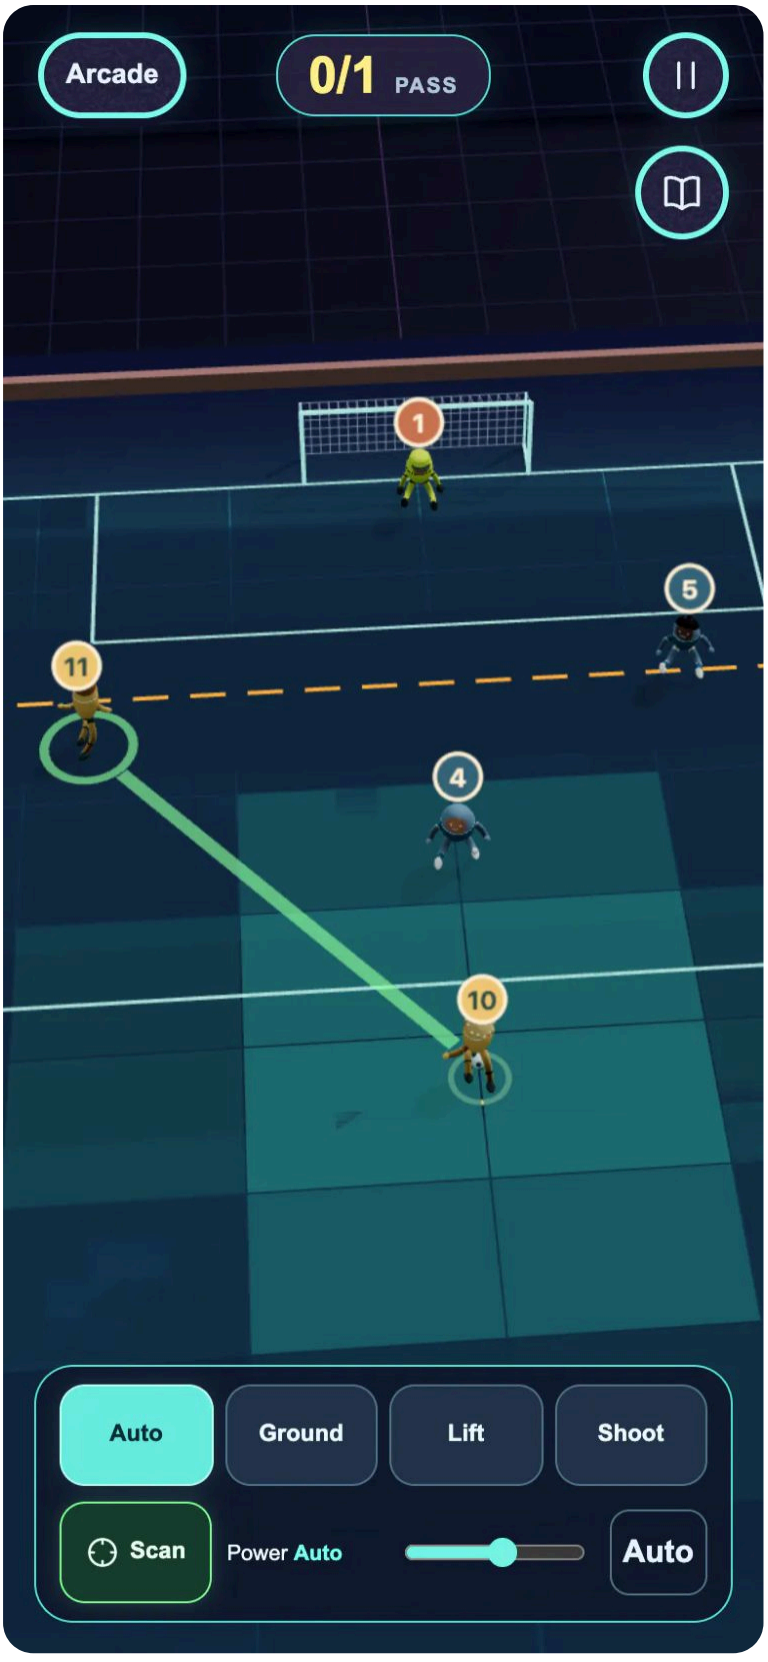

The Arcade

Five football games, one skill each.

The Arcade has Island Strikers, Breakaway Run, Futbol Tennis, Futbol Pinball and Pass Puzzles. Each cabinet names the one skill it trains, and coins from the arcade spend at the vending machines.

Football idea: One skill per game: pass, move and finish; beat the tackle; control the first touch; read the rebound; see the space.

In the game: 5 arcade games, each with its own skill line.

Pass Puzzles

Draw the pass that splits the defence.

Each puzzle freezes a moment in a match, and the player draws the pass with a finger. Packs build from first passes to beating the press, set pieces and wind and rain.

Football idea: Seeing space, timing a run and choosing the pass, including staying onside.

In the game: 46 puzzles in 12 packs.

Beach soccer on Coral Cay

Watch a live beach match with a guide to its own rules.

A beach soccer match plays on the Sharks Beach court on Coral Cay. A guide shows what to watch for and asks a quick question about the beach rules.

Football idea: How beach soccer differs from the grass game, with rules that match what the Coral Cay islanders say.

In the game: The guide pairs what to watch for with a short beach rules quiz.

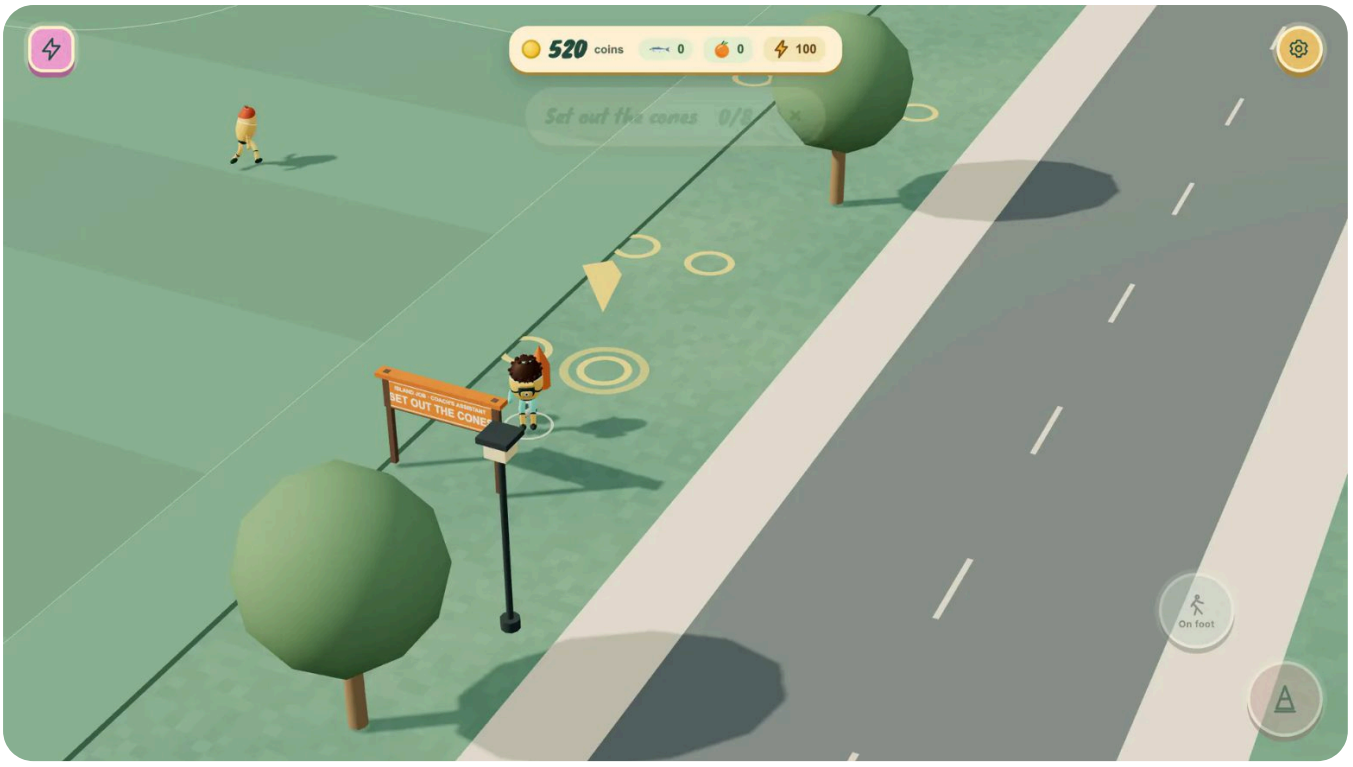

Keep-ups and sky kicks

Juggle the ball, then hold to send it sky high.

The player can juggle the ball anywhere on foot, and a counter keeps the score. Holding the button sends it high in the air, and a red mark shows where it will land.

Football idea: Ball control and reading the flight of a high ball to get under it.

In the game: A live counter on screen shows the streak of touches.

Island jobs

Flag the offside, set out the cones, be the ball kid.

Job boards around the island offer short jobs that pay coins. Each job is a real task around a football ground, with a coach tip on what it teaches.

Football idea: Matchday work and the rules behind it: offside flags, cone drills, wall rebounds, goal anchors and pitch markings.

In the game: 14 island jobs, one at a time.

Summit Kick

Hit the target hoops in the corners of the goal.

At the top of Summit Isle, an empty five-a-side pitch has hoops in the corners of the goal. A hoop only counts from behind the chalk line, a real shooting distance.

Football idea: Picking a corner: keepers stand in the middle, so the hardest shots to save go low or high into the corners.

In the game: The hoops sit in the four corners and under the bar.

Play together

Private parties for friends who know each other: same island, own kits, football calls instead of chat.

How a party starts

1. A grown-up taps Play with friends and passes the grown-up check.
2. Type your first name, start a party and share the 6-character code or link.
3. Your friend taps Join friends, types the code and their first name, and appears on your island.

Grown-ups stay in charge: a grown-up check comes first, and Settings can switch it off.

What it deliberately leaves out

- No free text chat and no voice chat
- No public lobbies, matchmaking or browsing other parties
- No accounts, friend lists, email or phone numbers
- No trading, gifting or shared coins
- No scores against each other

Play with friends

Invite friends to your island with a private code.

A grown-up starts a party, and friends who have the code join the same island at the same time. Everyone keeps their own island, save and coins, and friends are drawn on top.

Football idea: Learning beside teammates: friends explore, call for the ball and celebrate together, the way a team does.

In the game: Up to 20 players in a party, and a code takes new friends for 8 hours.

See your friends

Friends appear in their own kit, colour and first name.

Each friend shows in their own look with a colour ring and their first name above their head. Friends also show on the map, so it is easy to meet up.

Football idea: Kits make players easy to find, the same reason teams wear colours and keepers wear a different shirt.

In the game: Every friend in a party of up to 20 gets their own colour.

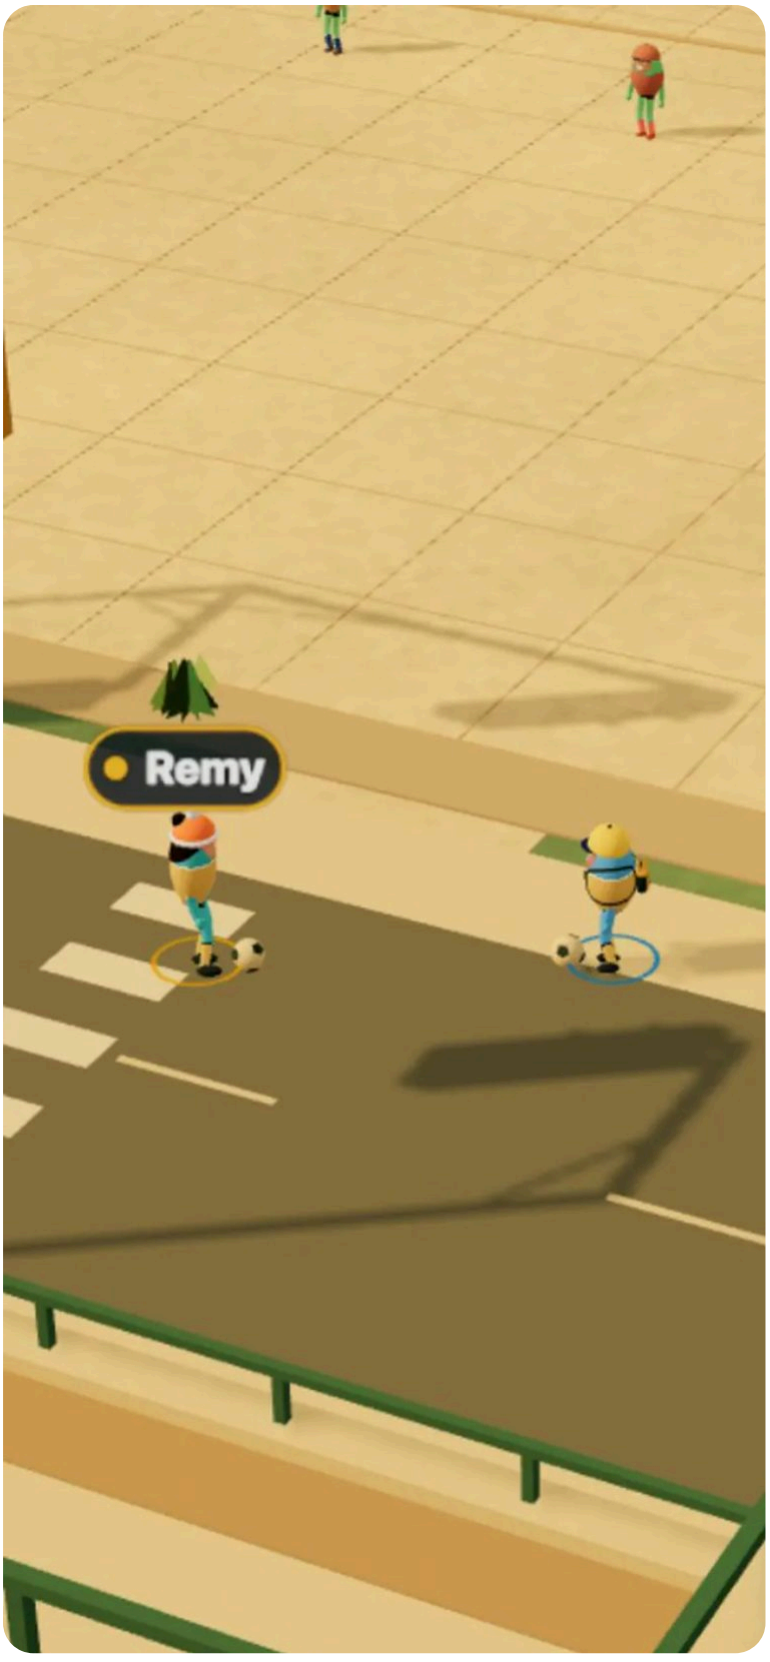

High fives and handshakes

Ten football emotes, from Well played to Pass it.

Emotes are football calls and celebrations: Wave, High five, Cheer, Pass it, Juggle with me, Well played, Laugh, Dance, Thanks and Show off. Each has its own version when flying, swimming or riding, and paired emotes play as whole-body handshakes.

Football idea: Respect and communication on the pitch: thanking a teammate, saying well played and calling for a pass.

In the game: 10 emotes and 20 handshake routines, including 10 different high fives.

Pass and juggle together

Ask a friend to pass or juggle, and play it out together.

Pass it and Juggle with me send a friend a request, and when they tap Yes both players play the routine with their balls. A friend can also bump into you or knock you over with a gentle ball, all in fun.

Football idea: Passing and receiving with a partner, the first thing any two players do at practice.

In the game: A friend has to tap Yes before a shared routine starts.

Together indoors

Walk the Konbini, Museum, Arcade and Kit Shop with friends.

Friends stay in the party when they step inside, and they see each other in the Konbini, the History Museum, the Arcade hall and the Kit Shop. Arcade games themselves are played one at a time, and the friend list shows who is playing what.

Football idea: Talking through an exhibit or a kit together, then trying it out on the island.

In the game: Friends share the Konbini, Museum, Arcade hall and Kit Shop floor.

Ride and fly together

Scoot, bike, fly and swim side by side.

A friend on a scooter, bike or moped shows on their ride, and flying and swimming friends move with you. Emotes switch to their flying, swimming or riding versions on the go.

Football idea: Travelling the island as a group to find balls, lessons and matches together.

In the game: Scooter, bike and moped rides show on friends.

Grown-ups stay in charge

A grown-up check, an off switch and host controls.

Starting or joining a party always passes a grown-up check, and a grown-up can turn Play with friends off in Settings. The host can remove a friend, lock a name or make a new code, and anyone can hide or mute a friend.

Football idea: Fair play and looking out for each other, built into how a party works.

In the game: First names are letters only, up to 12, and never stored; codes are 6 characters.

Trust points

- A grown-up check comes before starting or joining every party.
- Grown-ups can switch Play with friends off in Settings, behind the same check.
- No chat of any kind: friends talk with preset football calls and emotes.
- First name only, letters only, shown only to the party and never stored.
- Private parties by code, never with strangers: no lobbies and no friend lists.

Collect and read

Cards, books and costumes that carry real football history, earned by playing and learning.

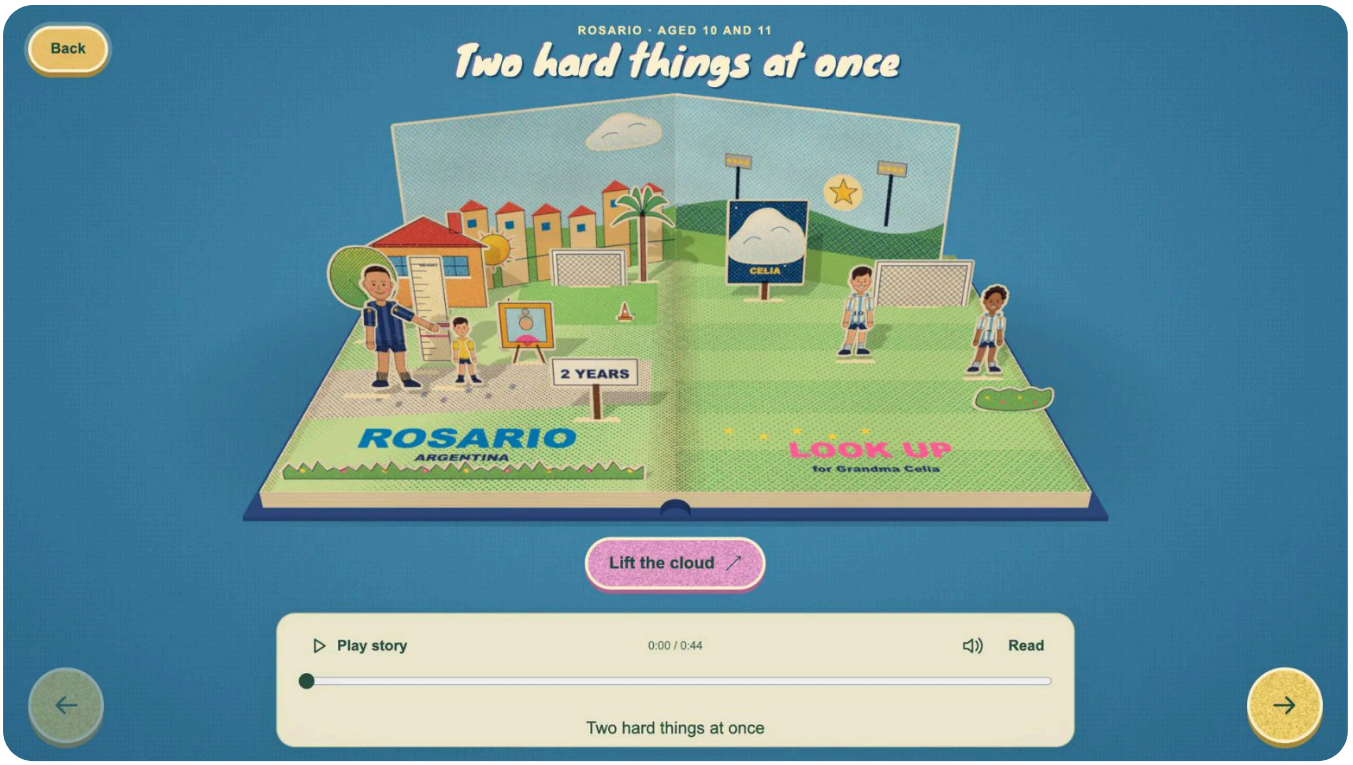

Player cards and binder

Collect current stars, all-time greats, futsal players and coaches.

Cards come as rewards for learning and from card packs, and they fill a binder with pages to turn. Each card shows the position, country, strengths and career.

Football idea: Positions and roles through real careers, plus the coaches behind famous teams.

In the game: 450 cards, including 50 coaches.

Pop-up books, read aloud

True stories of players who kept going, read aloud.

Each pop-up book tells a true story of a footballer overcoming hardship, with a narrator reading every page. A book check afterwards links the story back to a lesson.

Football idea: Resilience and practice habits, plus a "take it to your game" idea at the end of each book.

In the game: 37 narrated pop-up books.

Vending machines

Spend the coins you earn on cards, balls and rides.

Vending machines around the islands sell card packs, balls, rides and island animals for coins. Every machine also has a Specials row sold only there, which gives a reason to explore.

Football idea: Every card in a pack carries a football lesson, and coins come from playing and learning.

In the game: 14 vending machines across the islands.

Club animal costumes

Dress as a club's animal and learn the story behind it.

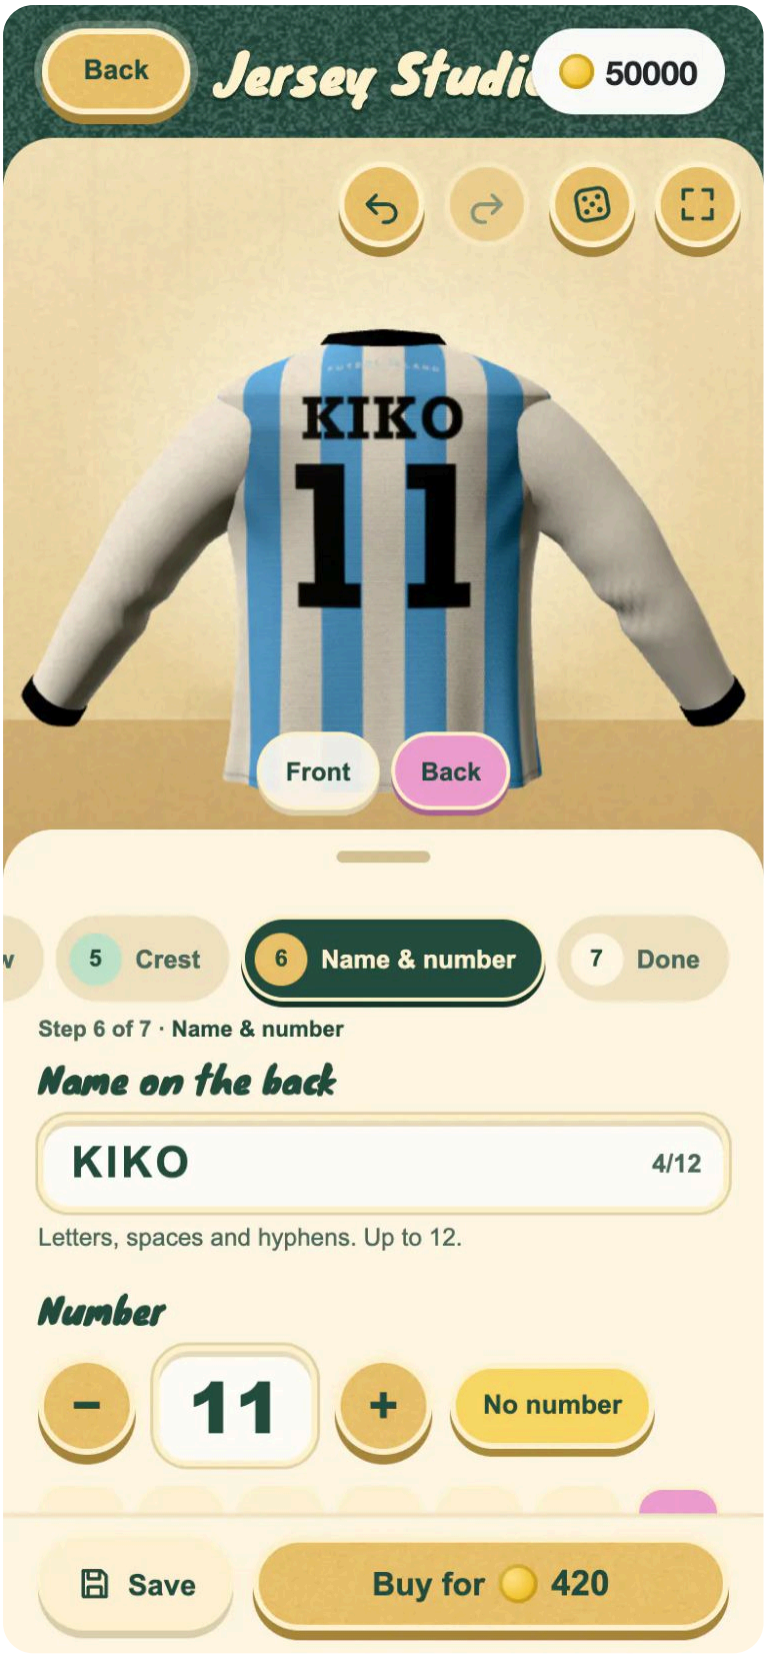

Costumes are island animals inspired by real clubs and their nicknames or mascots, in the club's home colours. Each one explains the club, its mascot and the true story behind the link, kept apart from island fiction.

Football idea: Club culture: where nicknames and mascots came from and what they mean to fans.

In the game: 23 club costumes; every 10 hidden balls found unlock 3 more.

Make it yours

Design a kit, pick a number and travel the island your way.

Kit Shop studios

Design your own ball, boots and jersey.

The Kit Shop has a ball studio, a boot studio and a jersey studio, and a child can even draw their own ball design. What they make dresses their island player.

Football idea: Kit basics and what shirt numbers mean, explained under the number picker.

In the game: 3 studios: ball, boots and jersey, with a draw-your-own ball design.

Your name on the back

Pick a number and put a name on the back of your shirt.

The jersey studio prints a name and number on the back, with a choice of font and outline. Party friends see the shirt and its number, but never the printed name.

Football idea: Squad numbers and positions: why a 9 is often the striker and a 2 a right-back.

In the game: Under the number picker, each classic number gets a one-line tip about the position.

Scooters, bikes and flight

Unlock new rides by finishing learning paths.

The island has scooters, bikes, mopeds and a jetpack for flying between islands, plus a zipline from Summit Isle to Coral Cay. Each finished path unlocks the next ride in every ride type.

Football idea: Learning comes first: rides open up as paths are finished, so progress on the pitch moves you around the island.

In the game: 4 ride types: scooter, bike, moped and flight.

Safe and simple

Free, no ads, no chat, no accounts, and a place for grown-ups to see progress and practise.

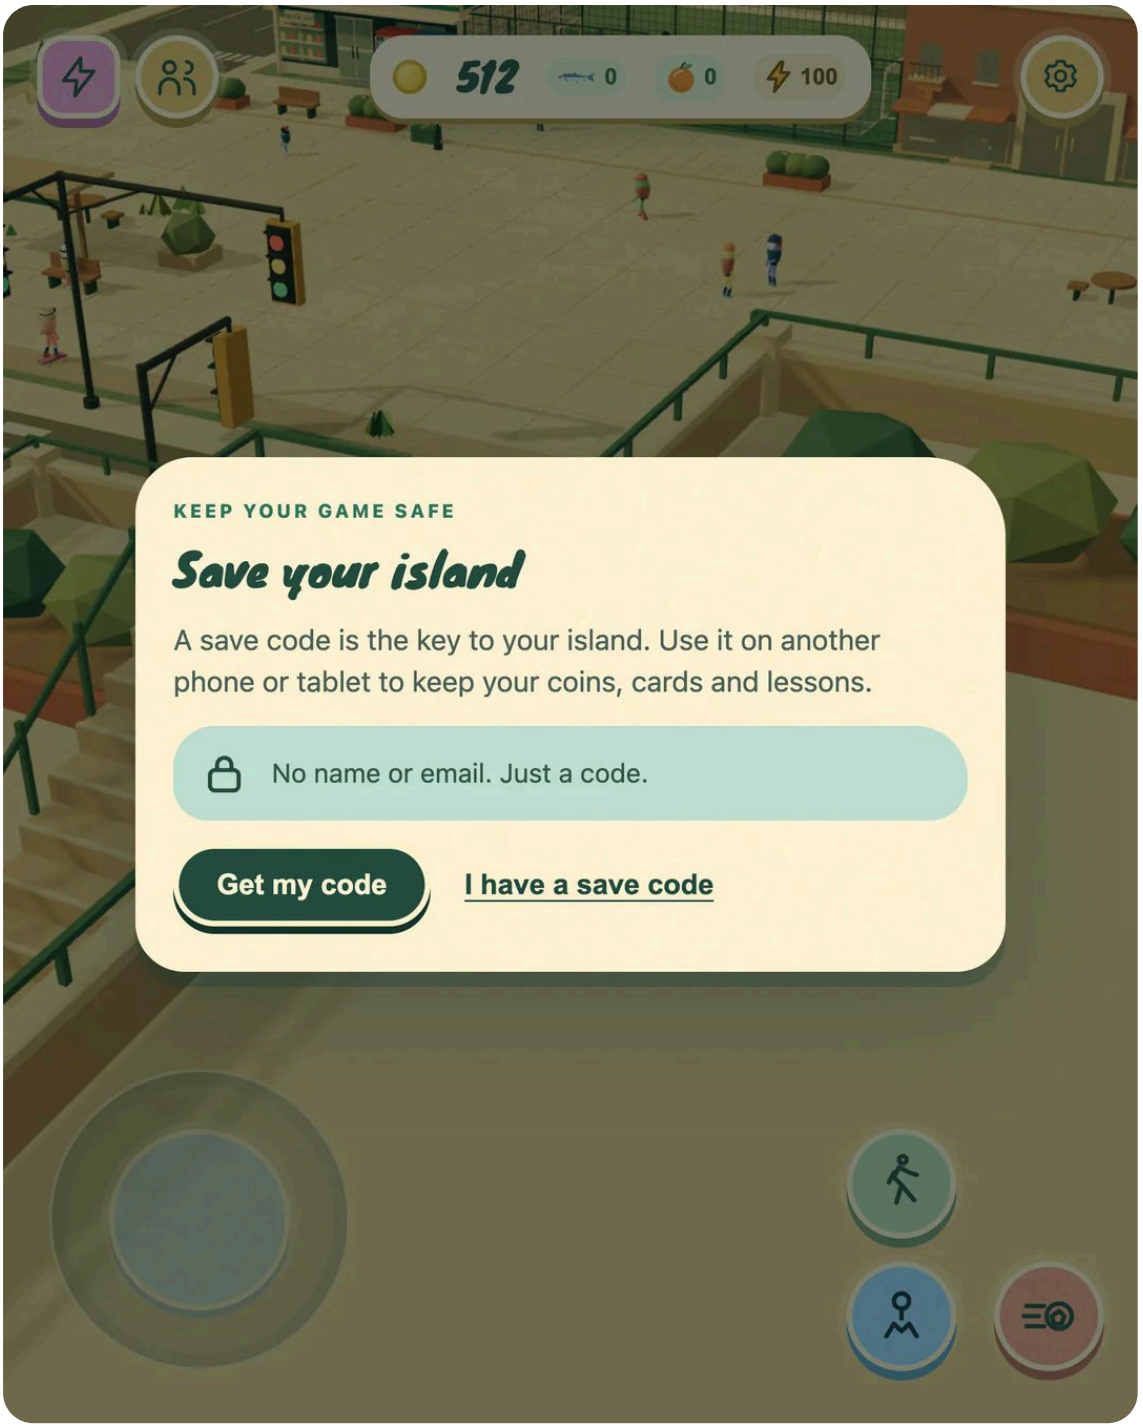

Free, with no ads

Nothing to buy and no ads, ever.

Futbol Island costs nothing to play and shows no advertising. Coins are earned by playing and learning, never bought with real money.

Football idea: Learning the game should not cost money; club soccer already prices too many kids out.

In the game: No ads, and coins cannot be bought.

Save code, not an account

Three football words and a number keep your island safe.

Instead of an account, each player gets a save code made of three football words and a number. Typing it on another device loads the same island.

Football idea: Even the code is football: words like striker, volley and corner.

In the game: The code is made at random and carries no personal details.

For grown-ups

See progress and get real practice ideas for the backyard.

Behind a grown-up check, the For grown-ups page shows lessons understood and prints a one-page progress report. It also suggests short practice activities tied to the lessons a child has explored.

Football idea: Taking the island's lessons onto real grass with a ball, a few cones and one grown-up.

In the game: 11 backyard or park activities, each needing at most a ball and a few cones.

Coaches Centre

Pick one "I can" goal, practise it, and talk about how it went.

The Coaches Centre holds a simple football plan with one or two goals made from fixed lists. It can be printed for a coach, and it never scores, ranks or compares children.

Football idea: Individual development: a clear goal, practice linked to lessons, and a talk about progress.

In the game: Typed notes stay on the device and are never uploaded.

Plays in the browser

Phone first, with nothing to download.

The game runs in the web browser on phones, tablets and computers. There is no app to install and no sign-up.

Football idea: Ten minutes between practices is enough for a lesson and a quiz.

In the game: Made for phones first, with a battery saver in Settings.

Questions grown-ups ask

Is Futbol Island free?

Yes. It is free to play, and there is nothing to buy. The island's coins are earned by playing and learning, never bought with real money. Donations to local non-profits are optional and sit behind a grown-up check.

Are there ads?

No. The game shows no advertising, and it uses its own visit counter with no cookies and no third-party analytics.

Can my child chat with other people?

No. There is no free text chat and no voice chat. Islanders are part of the game and talk through preset topics a child taps. Play with friends uses preset football calls and emotes only.

Does my child need an account?

No. Each player gets a save code of three football words and a number instead. The code is made at random and carries no personal details. Typing it on another device loads the same island.

What ages is it for?

Kids aged about 7 to 12, and the parents, carers and coaches who help them. The 7v7 path comes first because it is the simplest.

What devices does it work on?

It plays in the web browser on phones, tablets and computers, with nothing to download. It is made for phones first and needs an internet connection to load.

How does it actually teach football?

Every idea is shown on a pitch with moving players, explained by a coach voice step by step, and checked with a quick quiz. A lesson only counts once every question is right, and a daily warm-up brings passed questions back so they stick. The rest of the island ties back to the lessons, from hidden balls to live matches.

Who made it?

Futbol Island is built in San Diego in partnership with White Sports Ventures, founded by former U.S. Men's National Team player Jeremiah White III. It also works with the local non-profits FC YAP, Street Soccer San Diego and Ronin Futsal.

What data does it collect?

Most progress lives only in the browser on the device. With a save code, the allowlisted progress is saved against a scrambled version of the code, never a name or email. The game also counts anonymous usage totals to run and improve it and to show sponsors combined totals; nothing is sold, and nothing about an individual child is shared. The privacy policy explains what is kept and for how long.

How do friends play together?

A grown-up taps Play with friends, passes the grown-up check and starts a party. Friends join with the 6-character code or a share link, type their first name and arrive on the same island. Up to 20 players can be in one party.

Can strangers join, or can kids message each other?

Parties are private and join by code only: there are no public lobbies, matchmaking or friend lists. A code takes new friends for 8 hours, and the host can make a new code or remove someone at any time. There is no chat; friends use preset football calls and emotes.

Can I turn Play with friends off?

Yes. In Settings, behind the grown-up check, Play with friends can be set to Allowed or Off. A first name typed for a party is shown only to that party and is never stored.
